

HIGH KEY SOUTH OF GLENMORE

Posted on 2017-12-23 2019-12-16 by spd_wp_admin

Dear Reader,

Yesterday was a good day photographically. Keith and I had great amble and babble along some of the trails in South Glenmore Park yesterday. My objective was to try my hand at white on white. I am happy with the result. I do though think I need another iteration of adjusting the colour. That said I hope you enjoy them.

© Sean P Drysdale

2017-12-whiteonwhite-6 -

© Sean P Drysdale

2017-12-whiteonwhite-4 -

© Sean P Drysdale

2017-12-whiteonwhite-5 -

© Sean P Drysdale

2017-12-whiteonwhite-2 -

© Sean P Drysdale

2017-12-whiteonwhite-3 -

© Sean P Drysdale

2017-12-whiteonwhite-1 -

Keith`s take on the ramble can be found here:
<http://keithsodyssey.blogspot.ca/2017/12/you-used-to-be-able-to-see-mountains.html>

Cheers, Sean

2 Replies to “High Key South of Glenmore”

1. Keith says:

2017-12-24 at 05:31 Edit

Thank you for the link to my blog. I'd say the white on white thing worked out well. I'm not sure where you got the first one (top left), but I quite like it. You've captured the texture nicely. The top right one reminds me of a similar one I did in our garden, liking the image of a plant struggling to stay above the snow so it knows when spring comes. At first I thought the middle one in the left column was all about snow texture, and my eye sort of slid past it, but when I looked at the embiggened version I could see what prompted the shot. I'm glad to see the bullrush shot worked out. All in all an excellent ramble.

1. spd_wp_admin says:

2017-12-26 at 16:53 Edit

Thank you for visting and your comment. It was a good day.
Cheers