

A HIDDEN GEM

Posted on 2019-06-23 2019-06-22 by spd_wp_admin

Dear Reader,

This is the second day of “All Over the Map” and the first of 3 days from a hidden gem south of the Hat (Medicine Hat). If you promise not to tell tour companies the location, I would be happy to share it with you. Like any hidden gem, this location was revealed to me by a friend who took me there a couple of Friday’s ago. Thank you kindly Keith – it was a grand and long day out. Not only was the destination a treat, it was also a treat to see the prairies in their first coat of green.

Today’s quartet is all about establishing a sense of place. The first image is a pano, and could be printed approximately 35 x 17 inches at 300 dpi. The second image is also a pano (approx 30 x 20).

Here is the set of “All Over the Map”

- Day 1 Flowers
https://seandrysdale.com/site\_mgmt/2019/06/22/all-over-the-photographic-map/
- Today – A hidden gem – Establishing shots

© Sean P Drysdale

© Sean P Drysdale

© Sean P Drysdale

© Sean P. Drysdale

Cheers, Sean

2 Replies to “A Hidden Gem”

1. Keith says:

2019-06-23 at 21:32 Edit

Nice shots! I'll have to go back to mine, some of which were taken at very similar locations, if different cloudiness quotient, and check out why mine look slightly different. The one pano I got is extremely wide, about 7.5 feet x 1 at 300 dpi if I've done the math right. In one of your comments you mentioned that you hadn't noticed the people. That shot was taken during my Cypress Hills tour, not the day you and I were there.

1. spd_wp_admin says:

2019-06-23 at 22:07 Edit

Thank you for visiting and commenting. Ahh – different day instead of me being oblivious, which is perfectly possible.